Director of Information Security
Office of the Deputy Undersecretary of Defense (Policy)
Room 3C260, Pentagon
Washington, D.C. 20301

Gentlemen:

We are attaching six examples of daily situation memos and bulletins produced by one of our offices during the Korean War. Since much of the information contained in this series of reports was furnished by the military services, we cannot declassify them without your concurrence. Most of this information, however, appears to be very perishable. Rather than burden you with the review of several hundred such items, we are asking that, based on the attached examples, you give us the authority to take final action without coordination.

There are incidentally, a few reports in this record group on which our review officers extended the classification to protect a source, but the great majority are very similar to the attached examples.

Sincerely,

Chief, Intelligence Branch
Classification Review Division
Office of Information Services
Directorate of Administration
